INTRODUCTION

The Postgraduate Agency was constituted by agreement of the provisional Governing Council on 11 November 2003 at the proposal of the Rector and in accordance with Article 46 of the University of Barcelona Statute, according to which the Governing Council may establish agencies for the direction and management of certain university-wide activities. It is the body in charge of ensuring the academic quality of postgraduate lifelong learning courses at the UB, answering to the University and to society as a whole for the rigour and transparency of the academic and financial criteria by which its courses are governed. Given the degree of autonomy at which it operates, the Agency must also ensure coordination between UB schools or faculties and other bodies of the University of Barcelona or the UB Group that offer lifelong learning courses.

The Postgraduate Agency has regulated lifelong learning at the University of Barcelona since its foundation in 2003, and has strived to improve the overall quality of these courses through the promotion of cross-disciplinarity and diversity. The first Regulations Governing Postgraduate and Extension Courses were formally approved by the Governing Council on 29 May 2013 and were modified on 15 January 2016 to meet the requirements established by the Bologna Declaration. The curricula have been defined based on the general guidelines for bachelor's and master's degrees, the courses structured into modules and credits, and student, teacher and manager opinion surveys have been incorporated as essential tools for course assessment. These factors form the foundation upon which the Postgraduate Agency has based its processes of continual monitoring and periodic review of UB-specific courses as a fundamental part of the internal quality management and assurance system.

The importance of lifelong learning in association with universities was set forth in the Bologna Declaration, which defines lifelong learning as 'all learning activities undertaken throughout life with the aim of improving knowledge, skills and competences, within personal, civic, social or employment-related perspectives.' Accordingly, the University encourages the transfer of knowledge to the business world so that it can be applied in the various productive sectors of the economy. At the same time, the UB values the fact that the degrees it awards and lifelong learning courses it offers are, in general, vehicles for transmitting scientific and cultural competences and knowledge to citizens – competences and knowledge gained through the academic quality that only a university can offer and which are necessarily academically valid, professionally useful and personally enriching.

In this context, the preliminary draft of the Organic Law on Universities, the Organic Law of the University System (LOSU) of 2022 and the publication of Royal Decree 822/2021 of 28 September stipulating the organization of university education and quality assurance procedures establish lifelong learning as an essential dimension of university teaching and set out road maps for knowledge transfer and connection building between the professional sphere and the university in continuing professional and personal development processes for every member of society.

Specifically, Royal Decree 822/2021 constitutes the first basic regulation governing lifelong learning conducted by universities and the quality assurance procedures to be followed. It regulates this key area of education in the aspects through which universities demonstrate their social commitment, leaving a wide margin for flexibility, but providing a bases for standardizing the structure of this type of training and introducing the culture of quality assessment in these courses.

The Royal Decree establishes that universities can offer courses leading to the award of their own degrees, including lifelong learning courses, and that they can do this through a variety of educational modalities, such as lifelong learning master's degrees, specialization and expert courses, and university microcredentials or other short-term courses. It unifies the names of unregulated education that universities might offer, with special emphasis on the introduction of the Lifelong Learning Master's Degree, with a course load of 60, 90 or 120 credits. It also establishes the development of an internal quality management and assurance system and defines microcredentials, which are being developed all over Europe.

Given the above, it has become necessary to modify the Regulations Governing Postgraduate and University Extension Courses approved by the Governing Council on 29 May 2013 and amended on 15 January 2016 in order to adapt it to the provisions of LOSU 2022 and RD 822/2021. To this end, the Governing Council of the University of Barcelona approves the following modification to the regulations in effect up to now.

TITLE I. GENERAL PROVISIONS

Article 1. Purpose and scope

1. The purpose of these regulations is to govern the organization of lifelong learning courses at the University of Barcelona offered in accordance with Articles 36 and 37 of RD 822/2021 of 28 September, which establishes the organization of university instruction and the quality assurance procedure.

2. The regulation is applicable to students enrolled in lifelong learning courses and all of the academic and administrative staff that take part in the organization and teaching of those courses.

Article 2. Definitions

1. Executive Council of the Postgraduate Agency

The Board of Directors of the Postgraduate Agency, at the proposal of the Agency director, appoints the Executive Council to oversee the approval of course proposals and matters related to the academic and financial management of approved courses. The members and functions of the Executive Council are governed by the Regulations of the Postgraduate Agency.

2. Coordinating centre or entity

Coordinating centres or entities are authorized by the competent governing body of the University of Barcelona to provide lifelong learning courses. They include University faculties and schools, the Institute for Professional Development (IDP), the Institute for Lifelong Learning (IL3), centres affiliated with the University of Barcelona as well as other entities of the University of Barcelona and the UB Group.

3. Managing body

The management of lifelong learning courses is the responsibility of the coordinating centre. However, in some cases, this function may be taken on by an outside entity.

Managing bodies other than the coordinating centre include:

- a) The Institute for Lifelong Learning of the University of Barcelona, which, in addition to being a centre with the capacity to promote the courses it coordinates, may assume the management of courses coordinated by other UB centres.
- b) The Josep Finestres Foundation.
- c) Other UB Group entities authorized by the competent governing body of the University of Barcelona.

4. Course director

The course director is the person responsible for directing and, in some cases, coordinating the course. He or she must be an active lecturer at the University of Barcelona. The course may have other co-directors who may be lecturers from other universities, renowned professionals in their fields or members of social or business entities and organizations. However, only the lead director is authorized to sign exam records, authorize payments and perform any of the other duties inherent to the position of course director.

5. Coordinator

Courses may have one or more designated coordinator to assist the director in the tasks assigned to them, focusing mainly on organizational and student support matters.

6. Tutor and tutoring sessions

UB-specific courses may have different types of tutors and tutoring sessions: guidance and orientation tutors and placement tutors and academic module and master's degree final project tutoring sessions.

- a) Guidance and orientation tutors advise students and guide them from the time they access the course; they provide academic orientation, facilitate learning, motivate and, in some cases, offer personalized occupational and academic counselling.
- b) Placement tutors track students' monitoring data and oversee their progress and work performance. They also provide guidance, solve problems and help students overcome challenges throughout the placement period. Tutors may be internal, from the course, or external, from the company itself.
- c) Academic module tutoring sessions are given by the teaching staff of specialist courses and aim to complement lecture sessions, if necessary, by answering students' questions regarding the application of the knowledge and skills taught in the module.
- d) Final project tutoring sessions aim to advise and guide students on matters related to their final projects so that knowledge generated in the academic setting can be applied in professional settings.

7. Teacher

A teacher is anyone who delivers or develops content in any teaching modality, including members of academic teaching staff, professionals or members of administration and services staff.

8. Course modalities

Courses may be delivered in the following modalities:

- a) Face-to-face: These courses are delivered in a physical space in which teachers and students meet at a predetermined time for a predetermined period of time. They therefore require a schedule and the synchronized attendance of both teachers and students. If the course allows it, some students may participate in face-to-face courses remotely by connecting by means of a video-conferencing tool during the scheduled face-to-face sessions.
- b) Remote or online: These courses are delivered by means of tools and virtual environments that imply a physical separation between teachers and students. They may be synchronous or asynchronous.

- c) Blended learning: These courses combine face-to-face and remote learning and take advantage of the benefits of both modalities. Face-to-face sessions must account for between 30 and 80% of course hours.

The teaching modality of each course must be stated in the course proposal formally approved by the Postgraduate Agency.

9. Corporate training courses

Corporate training courses are organized by companies or institutions who wish to provide training to their employees. Only employees are eligible for these courses; they are not open to the general public.

10. Fellowship courses

In fellowship courses, a small number of students undergo an immersion programme in a healthcare, organizational or institutional setting in order to acquire and consolidate new knowledge, both theoretical and practical, under the guidance of the institution's professionals.

11. Recognition

Recognition is the University of Barcelona's acceptance of a student's previous training and education for application towards the award of a UB-specific qualification. If the recognition is based on credits obtained in other UB-specific courses, it may include the grade received in the original module.

12. Validation

Validation is the process by which the University of Barcelona acknowledges previous professional experience in the form of academic credits to allow the student to access a course and pursue the corresponding UB-specific course.

13. Overhead

Overhead constitutes the funds that must be withheld from the general revenue generated by lifelong learning and other UB-specific courses. The overhead percentage and any possible exceptions are established annually in the budget execution guidelines which accompany all budgets issued by the University of Barcelona.

14. Teaching period

The teaching period includes only the period in which classes are taught.

15. Academic period

The academic period includes the teaching period as well as any other academic activities such as tutoring sessions, placements, exams and assessments, student monitoring, and the preparation and defence of final projects.

16. Fixed course

A course is considered fixed once it has been given three times and no changes have been made to the name of the course, the modules or any courses that are integrally linked to it nor to the number of credits that it carries.

17. Microcredential

A microcredential is a certification of transparent and clearly defined practical and professionalizing training results (knowledge, skills and competences).

18. Internal quality management and assurance system

The internal quality management and assurance system for lifelong learning courses and other UB-specific courses consists of the process of periodic oversight, review, monitoring and evaluation for the purpose of improving management and other quality assurance processes in accordance with European standards and guidelines. It involves analysing the results of quality indicators and evidence in order to review and improve courses and their development and all of the management systems involved.

Article 6. Partner organizations

1. Partner organizations are those that, within the framework of a collaboration agreement or contract, participate in the organization, management or delivery of lifelong learning or other UB-specific courses run by a UB faculty or school or an entity of the UB Group.

2. The agreement or contract must explicitly state that the coordinating centre for the course and, ultimately, the Postgraduate Agency may monitor the partner organization's participation, specifically through inspection, audit and follow-up, if required.

3. The University of Barcelona receives a percentage of the enrolment or registration fees applied to the prices of the courses formally approved by the UB for overhead. This stipulation must be stated in the signed agreement and must be consistent with the general provisions of the UB's budget execution guidelines.

4. All amounts payable to the University must be reflected in the agreement or contract signed with the company or institution. For agreements or contracts signed by entity members of the UB Group that act as the coordinating centre and managing body for courses, the amounts reflected in the agreements or contracts will be payable to that entity.

5. Quality assessment processes for UB-specific courses with external management must be undertaken in accordance with the UB's internal quality management and assurance system established in these regulations.

6. The coordinating centre for the course is responsible for choosing, monitoring and following up on the partners that collaborate in UB-specific courses. It must also ensure that information about the course made publicly available through the website and other media is correct, does not mislead or generate false expectations, and makes correct use of the University of Barcelona brand and logos.

7. Before approving lifelong learning or other UB-specific courses involving the collaboration of a partner, the Postgraduate Agency will review the partner's compliance with the following general considerations based on information provided by the coordinating centre or partner organizations:

- a) The academic and research quality of the entity
 - The academic or research reputation and background of the institution partnering in the course.

- c) Integrated quality system
 - Information about the internal management and quality assurance system will be reviewed, as will documentation on feedback surveys and results, if applicable.
- d) Financial criteria
 - As a general criterion, the coordinating UB centre will be responsible for the financial management of the courses. In any case, both the financial criteria established by the University of Barcelona and those established by the coordinating centre or managing body of each course must be applied regarding the budget and the implementation of the course.

8. If so stipulated in the agreement or contract, partner organizations may assume some of the functions of the managing body described in Article 5.

Article 7. Course direction and coordination

1. The functions of the course director are:

- a) To manage and coordinate course activities.

Any other functions assigned to them under applicable regulations.

2. In courses with a coordinator, the functions of the course director fall to the course coordinator, except for those described in sections i, j, k, l and m.

TITLE III. COURSE TYPES AND STRUCTURES

Article 8. Course types

Depending on the study load and access qualifications, the courses can be:

- a) Lifelong learning master's degree. This degree has a study load of 60, 90 or 120 credits. It is equivalent to level 7 of the European Qualifications Framework (ECF) and level 3 of the Spanish Qualifications Framework for Higher Education (MECES). It is intended for students with a university qualification and culminates in the award of a lifelong learning master's degree certificate.
- b) Specialization course. This course has a study load of between 30 and 59 credits. It is intended for students with a university qualification and culminates in the award of a specialization diploma.
- c) Expert course. This course has a study load of between 15 and 29 credits.
 - Students with a university qualification, will receive an expert diploma upon completion.
 - Students without a university degree will receive an expert certificate upon completion.
- d) Advanced university course.
 - With a study load of fewer than 15 credits, it is intended for students with or without a university qualification and culminates in the award of an advanced university certificate.
 - With a study load of 30 credits or more, it is intended for students without a university qualification and culminates in the award of an advanced university diploma.
- e) University microcredential. This course has a study load of fewer than 15 credits. It is intended for students with or without a university qualification. It culminates in the award of a university microcredential certificate.

Article 9. Structure of lifelong learning and other UB-specific courses

1. All courses must be structured into modules, which must be worth a whole number of credits and a minimum of three. Modules to be accredited as an academic unit must have a minimum of five credits.
2. It is possible to enrol in independent modules that make up part of lifelong learning or other UB-specific courses with authorization from the course director.
3. The lifelong learning master's degree programme must necessarily include a module specifically for the preparation of the master's degree final project. Receiving a passing grade in this module does not, in any case, entail the award of any certificate or specific accreditation. It is merely one of the degree or accreditation requirements.

4. A lifelong learning master's degree programme may be made up of courses leading to a specialization diploma, expert diploma or advanced university diploma, which may be taken independently. In this case, in order to obtain a lifelong learning master's degree certificate, the student must pass all the modules corresponding to the specialization courses, expert courses or advanced university courses, in addition to the modules specific to the master's degree itself.

5. A specialization course may be made up of courses leading to an expert diploma or advanced university diploma, which may be taken independently. In these cases, it must also include a complementary module.

6. The courses that make up a lifelong learning master's degree programme or a specialization course may not have other courses linked to them and, therefore, may not have any internal structure beyond the modules.

TITLE IV. COURSE PROPOSALS, APPROVAL AND MONITORING

SECTION 1. Proposal development

Article 10. Competences with regard to course proposals, requirements and procedure

1. The coordinating centres defined in Article 2 of these regulations may propose lifelong learning and other UB-specific courses. These centres must coordinate the internal mechanisms necessary to allow their members to submit proposals.

2. The delegate or director of the centre or entity that develops the proposal will submit it to the Postgraduate Agency.

3. The Postgraduate Agency establishes the procedure for processing course proposals and the protocols necessary to define how they are best managed. Proposals are processed only through the computerized form provided by the Postgraduate Agency.

4. For fixed courses, an approval procedure may be established that encompasses several iterations of the course and, within that period, the centre need only submit a data update document, which will be approved by means of an abridged procedure.

5. The Executive Council of the Postgraduate Agency, by delegation of the Governing Council and Board of Trustees for courses that meet the criteria for delegated approval, will approve the course proposals submitted to it as it deems appropriate. It will forward proposals that do not meet the criteria described herein to the Board of Trustees for evaluation and possible approval.

6. Proposal must include at least the following information:

a) Academic report

- Course identification: type, name, credits, managing body, teaching modality, coordinating centre and director and, if applicable, coordinator.
- Express acceptance of the managing body for courses managed by an institution other than the coordinating centre.
- Course organization: structure, academic courses, credits, beginning and end of the teaching period, beginning and end of the academic period, pre-enrolment, objectives, admission requirements, location of classes, subject areas, collaborations, information about director(s) and, if applicable, course coordinator(s).

- Teaching guide: learning objectives, competences, subject matter, teaching method, teaching activities, assessment and grading criteria and systems, basic information sources and list of most relevant teaching staff in terms of academic or professional background.

b) Financial report

- Initial budget of foreseen revenue and expenses.
- If the financial report does not meet the financial criteria for the course approval process established by delegation of the Board of Trustees for the Postgraduate Agency, a rationale for non-compliance with these criteria must be attached.

c) Self-reporting on the internal quality management and assurance system

- If the course has been given previously, the coordinating centre must submit an internally produced report on developments and proposals for improvement.

7. The approval of the course triggers the initialization of the management mechanisms that support enrolment or pre-enrolment, financial management, publication of the course on the institutional website of the University of Barcelona and the activation of the virtual campus. Publication on the website formally confirms that a coordinating centre's course proposal has been approved.

SECTION 2. Course approval

Article 11. Course approval competences

1. All lifelong learning courses, regardless of the degree or qualification they culminate in, are initially approved by the Postgraduate Committee or by an ad hoc committee of the coordinating centre.

2. The Postgraduate Agency prepares an approval proposal, which is forwarded to the Vice-Rector's Office responsible for UB-specific courses and submits it for the consideration of the Executive Council of the Postgraduate Agency, which will grant final approval by delegation of the Governing Council and the Board of Trustees if deemed appropriate.

3. If a course receives a negative evaluation from the Executive Council of the Postgraduate Agency, the course may be remodelled, restructured or remain rejected.

4. The financial approval of courses is granted by the Board of Trustees. The Agency is authorized to approve courses that meet the criteria established in the delegation agreement. Courses that do not meet the criteria are submitted to the Board of Trustees for evaluation and possible approval.

5. The list of courses approved at the meetings of the Executive Council held since the previous Board of Directors meeting must be reported at the ordinary meetings of the Postgraduate Agency's Board of Directors.

SECTION 3. Course monitoring

Article 12. Course monitoring

Definitively approved courses must undergo a process implemented by Postgraduate Agency that consists of verifying compliance with the provisions of these regulations and the quality criteria established in the internal quality management and assurance system, the adequacy of the information made public in terms of the content and characteristics of each course, and the course's compatibility with the University's official degree programmes and general course offerings. This continuous monitoring and periodic review process is the same across all centres and all UB-specific courses.

SECTION 4. Agreements with other universities, organizations or companies and interuniversity courses

Article 13. Agreements with other universities, organizations or companies

1. Agreements linked to a lifelong learning master's degree or other UB-specific course can only be entered into if this condition is explicitly stated in the course proposal.
2. Agreements can be established with other universities, Spanish higher education centres or universities outside Spain or with public institutions or companies.
3. Agreements are proposed by the individuals responsible for the course and approved the dean or the director of the centre or entity concerned. Proposals must be entered into the agreement management application, in accordance with the instructions regarding the procedure for processing, validation and authorization of agreements prior to signing.
4. A draft agreement must be submitted with the course proposal or earlier so that it can be approved through established procedures. As an exception, if justified, the draft can be added after the proposal approval process is underway, but all agreements must always be signed before the beginning of the pre-enrolment or enrolment period for the course.
5. If the collaboration is to be included in the certificates issued to students, this intention must be stated in the collaboration agreement along with the name of the partner organization as it should appear on such documents.
6. If the course proposal includes curricular placements, these placements must be formalized by means of a collaboration agreement signed by the University of Barcelona and the company or institution in which the placement will take place in accordance with the procedure established by the UB for this type of agreement.
7. For courses managed by a UB Group entity, and if that entity also serves as the coordinating centre, the entity in question can sign the collaboration agreement as per its own formally established procedure.
8. For student placements, students must enter into an exclusively academic relationship with the company or institution in which they are placed and must never be employees. Therefore, they must be officially enrolled in the corresponding course.
9. The Student Support Service or any other unit responsible for the procedures related to the aforementioned agreements to be signed by the University of Barcelona will handle agreements of this type.

Article 14. Interuniversity courses

1. Interuniversity courses can be organized with other universities with compatible legal frameworks that culminate in a joint qualification issued by all participating universities. An agreement must be signed in these cases.
2. The agreement must specify the university responsible for handling enrolment, maintaining student records and issuing certificates.
3. Course proposals of this type must follow the standard proposal and approval procedure established above.
4. However, for interuniversity courses with a formal agreement stating that the University of Barcelona is not responsible for any type of management role or issue of certificates, the computerized form established by the Postgraduate Agency does not have to be used for submission of the proposal.

In this case, once the coordinating university has approved the course, the approved report will be sent to the UB centre to which the course is linked. The Postgraduate Committee or ad hoc committee of the coordinating centre will preliminarily approve the University of Barcelona's participation in the course and submit the documentation from the dean's office or centre or entity's management to the Postgraduate Agency for approval. The specific documentation in the procedure established to this effect must always be submitted to the Postgraduate Agency so that it can formally approve the course before the academic period begins.

TITLE V. CERTIFICATES AND ACCREDITATIONS

Article 15. Issue of certificates

Certificates for lifelong learning and other UB-specific courses are issued by the University of Barcelona under Article 34 of the Organic Law of the University System and Articles 36 and 37 of Royal Decree 822/2021.

1. The Academic Management service of the University of Barcelona issues the documents certifying that the student has passed the lifelong learning or other UB-specific course.
2. In order to issue these certificates, the coordinating centre must use the standardized form to draw up a certificate listing the students to whom certificates are to be issued and send it to the Academic Management Service. The certificate must state the name and date of approval of the course, the type of certificate, the name of the document to be issued, and the date and number of credits that must appear on each document to be issued. It must also state whether any collaborations authorized by agreement must appear on the document. The coordinating centre must confirm the validity and the adequacy of the wording in the agreement that indicates that the collaboration will be included on the certificate itself.
3. Enrolled students can only receive their certificates once they have successfully completed all of the modules that make up the course. Partial certification will not be awarded to students who have not completed the required modules. Nevertheless, students may receive a certificate verifying the credits earned in the modules they have successfully completed.

4. The procedure for issuing certificates is initiated upon the course director's request. Administrative approval from the coordinating faculty or centre is required after completion of the verification process confirming that the student has met all the access requirements and passed all the necessary credits.
5. All certificates must be signed by the Rector, the course director(s) and the student. The secretary of each faculty or centre is responsible for safeguarding issued certificates and recording their delivery to the student. The Academic Management Service establishes the procedure for taking reception of certificates.
6. Should the course director retire, die or become gravely ill, thereby being unable to sign the certificates, the dean or director of the coordinating centre or entity will appoint someone else to sign them.
7. The issue of joint certificates between two or more universities is governed by the provisions to this end contained in the agreement signed by the universities.

Article 16. Content and creation of certificates

1. The template for certificates and diplomas for lifelong learning and other UB-specific courses is included as Appendix I of these regulations.
2. The text must remain as presented herein and can only be modified to include a collaborating institution for courses organized by means of specific agreements authorized by the Rector of the University of Barcelona.
3. The language in which certificates are issued and their translations are established by the Language Policy Committee.
4. All certificates must bear the name of the course and the number of credits it consists of.
5. In courses structured in modules and that have defined this structure in the formally approved course proposal, a document can be requested from the coordinating centre which accredits the successful completion of each module worth five or more credits. This document will be issued upon request from the student and must follow the model provided as Appendix 2 of these regulations.
6. Certificates issued by UB Group entities must coincide as much as possible with the established templates. These entities must maintain an updated register of the certificates issued.
7. Certificates issued electronically will bear the printed signature of the Rector and the corresponding digital signature incorporating a digital certificate of the University of Barcelona for the purpose of authentication. Each certificate will also bear a secure verification code (SVC), which is the unique reference number for verifying the authenticity of the electronic document.

Article 17. Duplicates or modifications

1. When a student requires the issue of a duplicate certificate or a modification must be made to an existing certificate due to a cause attributable to the student, a request must be submitted along with a document-supported reason for the duplicate or modification. The following items must be attached to the request:

- a) To make a change in a name or surname: original certificate or diploma and documentation certifying the change requested.
- b) Lost document: sworn statement of loss.
- c) Deteriorated document: original certificate or diploma.

2. In addition, the student must pay the following fee:

3. Duplicates must include the following statement: 'Duplicate of [certificate/diploma] issued on [date] with full effect from the date of issue.'

The course proposal must at least include a financial report containing a preliminary budget specifying the foreseen revenue and expenditures for the items included in the course proposal application, plus the eligible expenses stipulated in the University's general regulatory framework and the guidelines issued by the Management and the Office for Internal Control, as well as in the internal guidelines of the UB Group entity acting as the managing body or coordinating centre. If the course is linked to a chair or minor chair formally approved by the UB, it can be co-funded with part of the revenue.
2. The budget must necessarily ensure the preliminary financial viability of the course. Any deficit that may occur upon the financial settlement of the course will be assumed by the managing body.
3. The proposal for the financial report is prepared by the lead director of the course, coordinating centre or managing body using the computerized form made available for this purpose by the Postgraduate Agency. The proposal must meet the financial criteria established by the Board of Trustees in its delegation of the duty of financially approving proposed courses to the Postgraduate Agency. If these criteria are not met, a justification for non-compliance must be attached.
4. For courses that include other specialization courses, expert courses or advanced university courses, a single financial report must be submitted that reflects the enrolment revenue budget for each of the courses that comprise it and a single list of expenses.

Article 19. Approval of the financial report

1. The financial report is initially approved by the Postgraduate Committee or ad hoc committee of the coordinating centre. The Executive Council of the Postgraduate Agency definitively approves the reports by delegation of the Board of Trustees. Reports that fail to meet the established financial criteria are forwarded to the Board of Trustees with the required information for evaluation and possible approval.
2. Courses for which a grant or financial subsidy has been requested from public administrations or other public or private entities may be conditionally approved if a strong enough rationale is provided for the granting of the subsidy. In this case, the effective delivery of the course will depend on the firm commitment of the subsidizing entity and student enrolment numbers that will guarantee the viability of the course.

Article 20. Modifications to the financial report

1. A centre may submit a request for modifications to the initially submitted financial report for approval by the Agency. The Agency will only accept requests for modifications that affect the hourly rate of pay for the teaching staff; the distribution of hours between the teaching staff from the University of Barcelona and from the collaborating institution; the amount of remuneration for management, coordination or tutoring sessions; or enrolment fees. Therefore, changes to entries for general expenses need not be submitted as a modification. These modifications must be communicated to the Postgraduate Agency with a formal explanation of the changes by the course director and a document confirming the approval of the managing body. The Agency will evaluate and possibly approve the modifications by delegation of the Board of Trustees or forward them to the Board of Trustees for further evaluation.

2. Increases or decreases in expected revenue do not necessarily require the submission of a request for a budget modification. However, decreases in expected revenue may result in a deficit that the managing body will have to assume.

SECTION 2. Budget execution

Article 21. Responsibilities

1. The coordinating centre will be responsible for the obligations inherent to the financial management of the courses, ensure that the goods and services appearing in the financial report are necessary for the course, and verify that the goods and services are provided on time, are of acceptable quality and are appropriately distributed.

Once the financial reports for the courses have been formally approved, the Finance Department will allocate a percentage of the expense credits with which the necessary expense files can be opened to launch the course. The specific percentage and the procedure for its authorization are established in the budget execution guidelines.

3. Upon receipt of official notification of the award of a grant, 100% of the corresponding expenditure appropriations must be made available immediately.

4. Once all the enrolment fees have been collected and settled, the relevant unit of the Finance Department will notify the course's managing body of the financial results and will increase the expense budget up to the corresponding amount.

5. Students who have formalized applications for grants from the administration or from any other public institution or centre in which the grant is to be paid directly to the University are subject to the following conditions:

The amount granted will be automatically deducted from the amount to be paid if the award has already been granted at the time the student makes payment.

Otherwise, the student must pay the full amount and, if the grant is subsequently awarded, the corresponding proportion will be returned to the student as soon as the University of Barcelona or any other entity of the UB Group acting as a managing body is made aware of it.

6. In order to pay the staff involved in the course, the Management of the University of Barcelona must establish suitable mechanisms.

7. Expenses are stipulated in the budget execution guidelines and in the guidelines issued by UB Management or the Internal Control Office, in addition to those contained in the budget included in the formally approved course report.

8. Inventoriable material acquired from the course budget becomes part of the University's assets, although, for the duration of the course, the use of this material is reserved primarily for the tasks performed in the the course for which it has been acquired. 3. Institutions outside the University of Barcelona or outside any of the entities that make up the UB Group with a formal agreement with the UB may promote the courses referred to in the agreement under the conditions established therein. Article 28. Student opinion surveys

1. Student opinion surveys are mandatory for all lifelong learning master's degree and other UB-specific courses that are subject to the SGIQ.
2. If student surveys from the last time a course was given are not submitted or if no reasons for why they have not been submitted are provided, the repeat offer of that course cannot be approved.
3. The Postgraduate Agency may establish other monitoring and control systems for courses whose characteristics inhibit the use of a student opinion survey.
4. For courses managed by entities other than UB centres, alternative systems of opinion collection may be established provided their design guarantees that sufficient information is obtained to determine the opinion of the students enrolled in the course.
